Bellevue Wisconsin Central Sold.

Rumors of the sale of the Wisconsin Central to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, current since the dissolution of the voting trust, are now given considerable credence by many railroad officials. It is asserted that an official statement will be forthcoming within sixty days, which will define the Wisconsin Central as a property either owned outright or controlled and operated as a part of the Milwaukee system. Libertyville Independent.

Rumors of the sale of the Wisconsin Central railroad to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company again became current Tuesday, but official confirmation of the report was unobtainable. ### Take Your Choice.

The postmaster general has ruled that the patrons of the rural free delivery routes may have their choice, call at postoffice for their mail or have it delivered, but the postmaster is not required to go through the carrier's case in his absence to hunt out mail for anybody, nor are the carriers required to stay at the postoffice after making their trips to wait on patrons. Therefore patrons desiring service both by the carrier and the postoffice will be required to rent a box at the postoffice in which the postmaster may put the mail which accumulates during the day, and such renter may call and get the mail during the office hours.

Real Robinson Crusoe.

The novel "Robinson Crusoe" was founded on the experiences of a certain Alexander Selkirk, who resided four years on the island of Juan Fernandez, in the Pacific Ocean, says W. B. Northrop in St. Nicholas. Captain Rogers, commander of the vessel which rescued Selkirk, related the story, and Defoe afterward worked it up into the narrative now so familiar to all. It was for this reason that Defoe was accused of pilfering the manuscript, and even to having stolen many letters belonging to Selkirk. Defoe is said to have made a snug fortune from the sale of "Robinson Crusoe," and out of the proceeds of the book to have built a fine house for himself in a suburb of London. So it must have won instant popularity.

ANTIOCH'S OPPORTUNITY ### TO SECURE A CONDENSED MILK FACTORY

Mr. C. H. Fuller has been soliciting subscriptions for a stock company and has made progress.

During the past few days Mr. C. H. Fuller, of Burlington, whose efforts has been the means of placing a condensed milk factory at that place, has been interviewing our citizens and farmers throughout the surrounding country in regard to erecting and conducting a condensing factory in our village, and thus far has met with flattering success, many of our citizens having already signed for shares in this enterprise.

Mr. Fuller has been engaged in the condensed milk business for a number of years, being at one time in the employ of the Borden Condensing Milk Company and is a gentleman thoroughly fitted for the work he has undertaken and one who possesses a knowledge only gained from experience. He has a clear understanding of this business which enables him to at once impress on the minds of those with whom he talks, not only the advantage of this factory to the farmers but also the benefit that an industry of this kind would be to our town. Antioch has arrived to that stage of its existence when something should be done in the way of inducing some manufacturing plant to locate here and this opportunity should not be allowed to pass by without a thorough investigation of its numerous advantages. There is sufficient idle capital in Antioch and the surrounding country to make this plan a grand success, and at the same time would prove a paying investment for all stockholders, as there is always a ready market for this line of goods and wherever these factories now are it is a thoroughly demonstrated fact that the share holders are each year receiving large dividends for every dollar invested.

Antioch is indeed an ideal location for an enterprise of this kind being situated in the very heart of a large dairying country, whose principle market has for years been Chicago and every morning hundreds and hundreds of cans of milk are taken from this community and from numerous milk stations along the railroad to the city of Chicago. But with this way of disposing of their milk the farmers are fast becoming dissatisfied. Chicago offers them no protection and demands much, and it is a noticeable fact that each year these demands are steadily becoming greater. The price paid the farmer is determined by the milk dealer in Chicago and ranges from seventy-five cents a can in the summer to one dollar and twenty-five in the winter, but it is only for a short time however that the latter price is paid, the average price for the year being about ninety-five cents for an eight gallon can. For this the farmer is expected to send to the city the best and purest of milk, pay from Antioch seventeen cents a can for transportation and if by any chance through rough handling, no matter whose fault it may be, the can should spring a leak before reaching its destination and all or a portion of the milk is lost, the farmer must not only lose the milk but the ticket and must also pay for having the can repaired. Should the milk dealer at any time find himself in possession of more milk than he can conveniently dispose of to save himself from loss he labors one day's milk "sour" and returns it, by the time it again reaches the farmer it is of no use to him, he has paid the railroad company for its transportation, got nothing for it, and again stands the loser. Very often cans are lost and those which are not lost soon pass beyond the period of usefulness on account of being detained in the city and allowed to rust and also on account of the numerous dents received on the roads and as a good can properly lettered costs in the neighborhood of $2.25 it may readily be seen that this is no small item. If at any time the farmer is unfortunate enough to lose a time ship to a man who is on the "dead beat" order he not only loses his milk and the tickets but pays his own way to the city once or maybe twice only to find out that the dealer owns nothing and never did except the clothes on his back, and those were in his wife's name. What farmer has not had that experience? Recently the farmer was notified that all cans shipped must be sealed, this too adds an expense for the farmer, and at any time the dealer has a little to much milk contracted he puts a note in a can saying that he does not want any more milk for a few days, and as the average shipper is without facilities for properly caring for it at home he realizes very little benefit from it. Is it any wonder that the farmer desires something different and why not have it? On account of the above mentioned conditions a condensing factory here would be sure of a good patronage as it offers its patrons a good fair price the year around. The farmer is sure of his pay and is under no unnecessary expense.

Let each and all investigate this matter. The farmer, the town, the merchant, all would be benefited, as this would call people for miles around and bring their trade to our village.

Below is given a table of the prices for six months of the year 1904, at the Borden milk factory at McHenry, beginning with April:

April.....$1.20 July.....$0.90
May.....$0.90 August.....$1.05
June.....$0.80 September.....$1.15

We understand that the Burlington factory employs about sixty men, and while at first a factory here would not employ that many there is a strong possibility that business would soon require that much help. It is estimated that from sixty to ninety days would be required to complete the building after the directors had made all necessary arrangements.

BEAUTY IN AN OLIVE.

It is asserted That a Spoonful of Oil Cures Sealsickness.

The olive has been applied for various medicinal purposes since old Rameses I. held sway over his dark-skinned subjects in northern Africa. In the days of ancient Rome the leaves and bark of the tree were used by the remarkable medical experts of that time to allay and cure violent attacks of intermittent fever, while the resinous gum which exuded from the tree in the hot season was used for many of the ills to which flesh is heir. The oil of the olive itself later was used by the Roman athletes to soothe their heated bodies after indulging in heroic attempts to break the early records for 100-yard dashes and putting the discus or shot. Then the oil of the wild olive was employed as an extraordinary panacea, guaranteed to stop the ravages of all ailments. Last of all, in more modern times, the women of our own day use the olive oil in the form of a soap to beautify the complexion by softening the pores and acquiring the skin itself. It is asserted upon good authority that a tablespoonful of olive oil taken internally will prevent seasickness and greatly relieve the effects of the morning after. Men sometimes prefer an olive to a cherry.

Merse Wins Bear of India.

Gen. Sir Montague Gerard of the British army, in his new book of reminiscences, has much to say about hunting. During his twenty years' residence in India he killed nearly 300 tigers, some of them dreaded man-eaters, while his bags of other wild animals would be difficult to number. Terrible as is the tiger, the wild boar is even more savage and dangerous to attack. His tusks frequently grow to nine or ten inches in length, and are as sharp as a razor. Tigers have a special dread of him, and in their encounters, which sometimes happen, he nearly always comes out victor. In pig-sticking, which is always done with a spear on horseback, there is constant danger of his disemboweling horses, in which case the rider often suffers also. Gen. Gerard had many narrow escapes.

Obituary.

MRS. HELEN SHULTIS.

Mrs. Helen Shultis was born March 14, 1837 at Coper, Columbus county, N. Y., and died at her home in Lake county, Ill., 1 o'clock A. M., Tuesday July 12, 1904, aged 67 years, 3 months and 28 days. She leaves, to mourn her loss, her beloved husband Walter L. Shultis, three sons, one daughter, Mrs. Mary S. Douglas, and a brother, Mr. Culver, of Antioch.

She was married in Wisconsin, February 1857 and for 47 beautiful years of wedded life and love journeys as the companion and beloved helpmate of her now bereaved husband, sharing with him the privations of pioneer life, in a new country, making the burdens and cares lighter by her own loving sacrifices and service. Soon after their marriage they moved to Kenosha and in the spring of 1857 to Lake county which has since been their home.

Mrs. Shultis (nee Miss Helen Culver) was in early life surrounded by helpful christian influences. In early womanhood she dedicated herself to God and later united with the Methodist Episcopal church at Lake Villa. Her health has been failing for some time. For some months she has been unable to attend her household duties. Her daughter Mrs. Mae Douglas, has been her constant attendant, showing in her unremitting care and loving services how her own mother heart responded to that mother's love which blessed her childhood and so enriched her life. The bereaved husband, kind friends and neighbors, were ever ready to aid, and though knowing her feebleness, they were greatly surprised by the sudden death of one to whom they had so faithfully ministered.

Thus another passes away whose life, faith, service and loving sacrifice for the good of others has again sanctified the precious name of wife and mother.

Beloved wife--how sweet the name,
A mother's love,
A pure and tender flame
Enkindled from above.

A large circle of friends attended the funeral services held at the farm home and conducted by Rev. James W. Lee, of Lake Villa. The burial was in the Fox Lake cemetery. The members of the Cemetery Association, of which Mrs. Shultis was a member, showing their affection by their presence and tributes and in singing a beautiful requiem at the grave.

"Rest in peace, thou gentle spirit
Thou art above
Sons like thine who God inherit Life and love."

MRS. EMMA GIFFORD.

On Saturday, July 9, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank E. Fenderson, at Channah, Ill., occurred the death of Mrs. Emma T. Gifford, widow of the late Geo. Gifford, of Chicago.

Mrs. Gifford was born at Albany, New York, August 7, 1832, but had spent most of her life in Chicago, having moved to that place in 1852 and was numbered among Chicago's oldest inhabitants. She had been a patient sufferer for many months, having undergone an operation for appendicitis early in the spring and never recovering from the effects but gradually grew weaker and weaker until on July 9 she passed away at the advanced age of 72 years.

The funeral services were held in Chicago on Monday, Rev. Clarence Able, of Trinity church, officiating; and the body was laid to rest in the family burial spot in the beautiful Rose Hill cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful which in a measure expressed the esteem in which she was held by her many friends and relatives, who will greatly miss her bright smile and cheery words and comforting presences in their homes.

The News joins with their many friends in extending the most sincere sympathy to those bereaved ones in their hour of deep sorrow.

Quick Work on Warship.

The construction of the Louisiana at the New Orleans yard has proceeded much more rapidly than that of any other battleship ever constructed for the United States.

AROUND THE WORLD

At Cleveland, Ohio, fire partly destroyed the plant of the Forest City Belted company at the foot of Alder street. The loss is estimated at $100,000. Half a dozen firemen were overcome by heat. Fireman Thomas Rafferty, one of the men overcome, fell into the burning building and was rescued with great difficulty.

Pope Pius is seeking to recover through J. Pierpont Morgan a rich and ancient cope, or ecclesiastical mantle, which was stolen from a cathedral and is now in the South Kensington Museum, having been given to that institution by Mr. Morgan. It had been purchased by the American financier. It was stolen from the Cathedral of Ascoli in 1902. It was a gift to the church from Nicholas IV.

One thousand Russians were killed or wounded in a battle near Motien Pass. The Russian army under General Keller, consisting of eighteen divisions and some artillery, attempted to drive the Japanese under General Kuroki from their positions, the fight lasting from daybreak until 3 o'clock in the afternoon of July 17. The Russians were repulsed at all points and were pursued by the Japanese for some distance.

Dr. C. C. Nicola, celebrated as a vegetarian doctor and the head of the New England sanitarium, in discussing the Chicago strike, said: "This strike of meat men is a blessing in disguise and will demonstrate further that people can live and are better off without meat. Coming as it did during the hot weather, people will find by eating more vegetables and less meat that they feel better, sleep better and save money."

After spending three days on a desert island off Mobile, Ala., with the body of her husband, Mrs. Daniel McCall was rescued after her husband had been almost wrecked by grief and terror. Captain McCall was the lightkeeper on Cat Island, and dropped dead near the door of the lighthouse. His wife, 60 years old, was unable to move the body, and though a number of ships and yachts passed every day within sight she signalled them in vain.

In a most freakish display of lightning at McKeesport, Pa., Charles Jeffries, left fielder of the Johnstown baseball club, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The sun was shining brightly through a small cloud. Except for this the sky was clear. The 500 spectators in the stands were startled by the loud report of thunder that accompanied a flash of lightning that struck Jeffries on the head. The other players were knocked down and seriously shocked.

THE DISASTER TO THE "GENERAL SLOCUM."

TUGS AND ROW-BOATS ATTEMPTING TO SAVE THE PASSENGERS OF THE BURNING STEAMER.
The steamer "General Slocum," carrying the annual Sunday school excursion of the St. Mark's German Lutheran Church, of New York, to Locust Grove, Long Island Sound, on June 15, took fire while off Sunken Meadows. The flames speedily became uncontrollable, and panic followed. The vessel, unable to turn because of the Hell Gate rocks, was run at full speed to North Brother Island, and there beached. The hurricane deck gave way almost at the first. Many brave attempts at rescue were made, but nothing could prevent an enormous sacrifice of life, and over 1,000 persons, mostly women and children, perished.

EXCURSION TRAIN IS WRECKED.

Twenty-four Persons Killed and Seventy-Two Injured at Glenwood, Ill.

Twenty-four women and children were killed and seventy-two injured, forty seriously, in a collision between an excursion train loaded to the platforms with Sunday school picnickers from Doremus Congregational Church, Chicago, and a freight train near Glenwood, Ill., at 6:40 o'clock Wednesday night.

The wreck was the result of a misunderstanding of orders. The excursion train was coming north on the south-bound track of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad when at a curve half a mile south of Glenwood it crashed into the rear end of a coal train. The baggage car was telescoped and the first coach completely demolished. Both cars were filled with children and old women.

The party of 750 picnickers was returning from Island Park, Momence. For the most part the passengers were happy children and their mothers. Some were singing and some were asleep when the wreck came.

At the crash those in the rear cars of the eleven-coach train rushed for the doors or jumped through the windows, many being injured. In front, the first two cars, crushed like egg shells, were crowded with dead and injured.

The baggage car had been filled with romping children. The roof of the first passenger was rammed clear through it, pushing the cruelly crushed mass of humanity through the breaks in the walls. The first passenger car was torn to splinters.

Word was sent to Chicago Heights and Glenwood and relief parties reached the spot fifteen minutes later. The scene was a most fearful thing. Struggling masses of bodies could be seen through the openings in the cars. The dead and injured were packed in together.

The dead were terribly, horribly mangled, heads and limbs having been severed, and in the midst were the maimed and injured living. It was fifteen minutes before the first body was taken out.

There was no screaming or wailing. The picnickers came to the aid of the workers who had arrived in large numbers.

WRECK OF PICNIC TRAIN AND WHERE IT OCCURRED.

Eight physicians were soon on the scene.

The enormity of the catastrophe did not become apparent until they started to take the bodies out. The passengers in two cars which were smashed were mostly mothers and their children. Families had stayed together. Few in the other coaches had relatives among those killed.

The lack of water caused much delay and a dozen mangled little ones breathed their last under the scrub oaks on the seat cushions.

Flies were built to heat water. The farmers brought water in milk cans. The field hospital was operating among the piles of dead until 8 o'clock, when the last bodies which could be found were taken out and placed on a special train for Chicago.

PAUL KRUGER IS DEAD.

Former President of Transvaal Republic Passes Away in Switzerland.

Former President Kruger of the Transvaal republic died at Clarens, Canton Vaud, Switzerland.

President Kruger's name has for twenty years been a household one throughout the civilized world. He won for himself the title of "Modern Champion of Liberty."

Disappointment over the conquering of the South African republics by Great Britain primarily caused his death, although the fatal disease has been diagnosed as a gradual wasting away due to the infirmities of old age.

When the war broke out President Kruger had an enormous private fortune, which he sacrificed in the hopeless cause of liberty. When he left South Africa never to return, he had less than $5,000, according to an authoritative report. He was 70 years old.

WOULD AVOID DIPPING CATTLE.

Delegation Petitions President and Secretary of Agriculture.

By an order promulgated in March by the Secretary of Agriculture, it is required that all cattle west of the Mississippi river intended for shipment should be "dipped" in a preparation prescribed by the department for the purpose of absolutely exterminating the skin disorder known as the mange, which has existed to a limited extent for many years in that section.

As it has been found impossible to make necessary preparations and round up and dip the cattle within the limited time allowed, numerous petitions have reached the department praying for a relaxation of the order. The other day a delegation appeared before the Secretary of Agriculture, and later called on the President, requesting that the order be so modified as to obviate the dipping of beef cattle before shipment and in lieu thereof to institute rigid government inspection at the point of shipment before the cattle are loaded on the cars.

The Feminine Mind.

The ways of certain feminine minds are illustrated by a story told by William Narris, the actor. He recently introduced two young women whom he knows well, and was anxious regarding the opinion that they formed of each other.

After they had conversed for a time and separated, he asked one of them what she thought of the other.

"If I told you," she replied, "you would say I was 'catty,' so I will not tell you."

Mr. Narris wrote to the other girl and casually asked her what she thought of the young woman she had met. He received this reply:

"You want my opinion of Miss Blank? No, you don't!"

Of Wide Interest.

Breed, Wis., July 18.—Special.—Chas. Y. Peterson, Justice of the Peace for Oconto Co., has delivered a judgment that is of interest to the whole United States. Put briefly, that judgment is, "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best kidney medicine on the market today."

And Mr. Peterson gives his reason for this judgment. He says: "Last winter I had an aching pain in my back which troubled me very much. In the morning I could hardly straighten my back. I did not know what it was, but an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking one box I can only say they have done more for me than expected, as I feel as well now as ever I did before."

Pain in the back is one of the first symptoms of kidney disease. If not cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills it may develop into Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism or some of the other deadly forms of kidney disease.

MATCH FOR THE CONDUCTOR.

Woman Passenger Shows How It Is Possible to Get Even.

She was one of those women with a righteous look and firm chin.

"Please stop at Thirty-eighth street," she said to the conductor, as the car wheeled past Thirty-sixth.

At the next corner she rose to be ready to alight, but the car did not stop, the conductor being busy doing the hospitality of his car to a chance acquaintance. Before she could catch his eye and stop the car she had gone a block past her destination. She put her foot on the step, then drew it back and calmly sat down again. The conductor, his hand on the bell rope, waited the picture of vigilant duty. She gazed straight ahead and made no sign. With a profane remark he jerked the rope and the car moved on.

Two blocks further she arose and caught his eye again. This time he managed to stop at the first corner. But she apparently changed her mind and sank comfortably into her seat while an appreciative smile overspread the faces of the other passengers.

At the end of another two blocks she once more signaled to him to stop and, though he was bursting with wrath, a dozen pairs of eyes were upon him and he controlled himself. The car came to a standstill, but she did not move.

"It's the next corner I want," she explained in a clear voice, as a titter went round the car. "When I asked you to stop at Thirty-ninth you carried me to Fortieth, so I supposed if I signaled you for Forty-third you'd carry me to Forty-fourth."

And at the next corner she smiled graciously at the conductor as she stepped down and out.—New York Press.

A BACK LICK.

Settled the Case With Her.

Many great discoveries have been made by accident and things better than gold mines have been found in this way, for example when even the accidental discovery that coffee is the real cause of one's sickness proves of most tremendous value because it locates the cause and the person has then a chance to get well.

"For over 25 years," says a Missouri woman, "I suffered untold agonies in my stomach and even the best physicians disagreed as to the cause without giving me any permanent help, indigestion, neuralgia, etc., so I dragged along from year to year, always half sick, until finally I gave up all hopes of ever being well again."

"When taking dinner with a friend one day she said she had a new drink which turned out to be Postum and I liked it so well I told her I thought I would stop coffee for awhile and use it, which I did."

"So for three months we had Postum in place of coffee without ever having one of my old spells, but was always healthy and vigorous instead."

"Husband kept saying he was convinced it was coffee that caused those spells, but even then I wouldn't believe it until one day we got out of Postum and as we lived two miles from town I thought to use the coffee we had in the house."

"The result of a week's use of coffee again was that I had another terrible spell of agony and distress, proving that it was the coffee and nothing else. That settled it and I said good-bye to Coffee forever and since then Postum alone has been our hot mealtime drink."

"My friends all say I am looking worlds better and my complexion is much improved. All the other members of our family have been benefited, too, by Postum in place of the old drink, coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee or tea is the wise thing for every coffee drinker. Such a trial tells the exact truth often where coffee is not suspected.

New York.

Advices indicate little change during the week in the general trade situation, jobbing centers reporting active business, several lines showing good gains over a year ago. In many instances these gains are sufficient to compensate for losses sustained early in the season.

The outlook is generally encouraging, reports from all centers indicating a more hopeful feeling than prevailed a month ago. While there is the natural uncertainty of the Presidential year, there are few "blue spots" in the country.

At the West business is active. Future deliveries in clothing, shoes, men's furnishings, and some branches of dry goods compare favorably with a year ago. Sections where mills have shut down reflect some depression, but this is not unusual for "inventory week." Owing to the rush work of a year ago, and consequent postponement of repairs needed then, the period of inaction this year may be somewhat prolonged. Except for the hardship to employees this interference is not likely to prove of much inconvenience.

The labor situation at the West has unquestionably improved. Employers and employees are working in greater harmony than at this date for years past.

The more confident tone noted a week ago in the iron industry continues, and the belief gains ground that the improvement will gradually extend to all branches of the trade.

Some improvement is noted in New England, where general trade is picking up slightly and merchants appear somewhat more hopeful.

The Indianapolis district reports fair trade in all lines excepting dry goods, where sales average less than a year ago. Collections in that territory are still slow. In certain sections of the South trade has fallen off slightly, although business in general is well up to the last year's total.

Crop conditions everywhere have shown improvement, the government report confirming the encouraging tone of private advices to the effect that the outlook was excellent for a record cotton yield.

Chicago.

Dun's Review of the week's trade, published by R. G. Dun & Co., says: Bank exchanges increased and mercantile money was liberally invested in high-grade securities. The July disbursements reached a larger aggregate than heretofore and the settlements proceeded smoothly among the financial institutions. Commercial loans remained in moderate request, but indications developed suggesting a freer use of accommodation in the near future.

Aside from an improved volume of retail trade, business in the producing and distributing lines has undergone no important change. Country buyers have shown less hesitancy in selecting future requirements. Railroad traffic reports disclose gains, although slight, in the westbound movement of general merchandise.

Iron and steel products assumed more firmness in prices. There has been some curtailment in production, and the general demand was without especial feature, except in pig iron, orders for which were numerous, indicating that consumers' stocks are very low. Other manufacturing branches have maintained fair activity and there was less closing down of plants for repairs than expected.

Grain shipments, 1,538,098 bushels, are 13 per cent under those a year ago. Current receipts run light, but are ample for the demand. Reports of damage to wheat caused by excessive rainfall in the central valleys forced a sharp rise.

FOR CIRCUIT CLERK

I shall be a candidate for re-nomination, for a second term, to the office of Circuit Clerk, subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention.

Lewis O. Brockway.

It has remained for the able Congressman from Mississippi, John Sharp Williams, to point out the effects of good prices for good crops upon a Presidential campaign. He frankly says that the rise in wheat elected McKinley. The farmers, he says, flocked to McKinley in shoals, because higher prices and a better volume of trade promised to their minds prosperity without free silver. If this proposition is true the recent high prices of cotton, to say nothing about beef, should have a potent influence in the present campaign. Undoubtedly agricultural prosperity is at the basis of happiness and contentment in this country, as well as in others, and incidentally this depends largely upon good government as well as upon climate condition.

If the growth and prosperity of America continues but for one short generation more, nothing can hinder its becoming the controlling power of the earth. Capt. A. T. Mahan, the authority on naval affairs, in a recent speech in London gave voice to the sentiment that all English-speaking people should be so far united as to act together. With a federal British empire, and a United States of America, both pulling in the same direction, the peace of the world could be easily maintained. And ultimately one flag will symbolize the Anglo-Saxon race.

It has been decided by the appellate division of the New York Supreme court that a man may not refuse to give the court needed facts on the ground that he is bound by a lodge oath not to give them. In this country a man's first duty as a citizen is to be loyal, and to both uphold and obey the laws. The very gist of the charge against the Mormons is that they must obey their church rather than be loyal to the Constitution of the United States, if the pinch should come. Whether this is so the congressional investigation committee is trying to discover.

During the progress of the Democratic Convention at St. Louis it was telegraphed all over the country: "The gold plank goes out." This was considered a triumph for Bryan. That old Democratic politician from New York, Hill, smiled when he agreed to let the gold plank slide. He knew his nominee. After the nomination was made, Judge Parker coolly informed the delegates at the convention that he was a gold man. They could take him with that plank, or they could go without him. After all Mr. Bryan was outwitted. It is at least amusing politics.

The Republicans believe in new blood and young men for action. With a young and very much alive President they wanted a comparatively young man for Vice President. This is why Mr. Hitt, over 70 years of age, was not nominated. The Democrats take quite another view. They think the times demand wisdom and caution. With a young President they would couple an elderly Vice President ripe with years, aged 81. It remains for the voters to choose between the two.

People who live in the celebrated Tuxedo Park must be very fortunate as well as modest and economical. The telegraph tells us that a few days ago a "cottage" costing $1,000,000 was burned, and that the humble occupant of the cottage lost several hundred thousand dollars worth of jewelry. Think what would happen if the mansion of a really rich person should be destroyed! However the times are prosperous, and some well-to-do people actually live in cottages.

The English government professes to be very glad that Secretary Hay has asked it what its intentions are regarding Tibet. The reply is it has no intentions; only just a little murdering expedition to please viceroys Curzon, who fancies he was snubbed recently by some Tibetan commissioners. Meanwhile Col. Younghusband continues to penetrate, destroy villages, burn houses and kill the inhabitants. It is thought that Hay will speak again.

Said Senator Dubois, before the receipt of that celebrated telegram from Judge Parker: "Why should silence on the money plank cause us to lose votes? Doesn't Wall street have sense enough to know that if we did elect the President and the House we could not change the gold standard law." Judge Parker said Senator Dubois should flock together.

A bishop's wife wearing fifty thousand dollars worth of jewels may not be a very poor representative of the drift of the times, but she is quite a curiosity in high ecclesiastical circles. The wife of Bishop Potter of New York had this amount invested in trinkets, but, unfortunately perhaps, she has been robbed of the whole outfit.

The American of Baltimore, announces that as a result of the St. Louis convention Maryland can now be regarded as a sure enough state for the republican column and Roosevelt. There is much dissatisfaction, even among Democrats, at the peculiar methods of Senator Gorman.

New ideas begin to come from Europe to America. At Belfast new Atlantic steamships are being built, which will be fitted with restaurants where meals can be ordered when wished for, passengers paying separately for their passage and meals.

It cost the people of England the pretty penny of two millions of dollars to put their present King and Queen on the throne, when there was no opposition. Exactly what it costs to elect a President of the United States no fellow knows.

Hobson is a windy fellow. He let himself loose at the St. Louis convention. The effect was much like a weather bureau balloon filled with gas, sent up to explore the upper currents of air. It came down flat and nothing was discovered.

If Wm. J. Bryan would not "stand for a gold plank", how can he stand for a candidate who comes out flat-footed for gold?

A LESSON IN ECONOMY.

Foxy Youth Even More Saving Than His Stingy Uncle.

A naval officer, recently returned from the Isthmus of Panama, tells the following story concerning the wealthiest man on the isthmus:

"Senor M— is known all over the isthmus as the stingiest man who ever lived. He will have no lights in his house except candles, and the lone candle in his sitting room is not burned at night when he is talking to visitors and is not compelled to have a light.

"The old man has a nephew who makes the money fly. A short time ago he called on his uncle at night. While they were talking the old man blew out his candle.

"What did you do that for?" the youngster asked.

"Why, we don't need the light while we are talking," the uncle replied.

"While the uncle was talking earnestly the boy began to shuffle about in the dark. Much annoyed by the interruption, the old man said, 'What are you doing?'

"Only just taking off my trousers," the boy replied. 'I don't need them in the dark and want to keep from wearing them out.'—New York Tribune.

Bee's laxative honey and tar contains the antiseptic, healing soothing and strengthening properties of the native pine combined with other ingredients in a laxative syrup made from the pure strained honey. Cures all coughs and strengthens weak lungs. Sold at Swans drug store.

Unmarried Philosophers.

What philosophers have said about marriage would make a fairly large book, but these sayings might not always be catalogued as "philosophy." It is recorded of Herbert Spencer that he rejoiced at having never married, because so many of his friends who had done so came at length only to tolerate their wives, and Montaigne compared marriage to a cage, the birds outside longing to get in and the birds within longing to get out. "Of mine own wisdom," wrote the great Frenchman, "would Wisdom herself have had me I should have refused to wed her." He simply "let himself be guided by custom." Yet he admitted on another occasion that "the company of faire and the society of honest women is a sweet commerce."

Bee's LAXATIVE Honey and Tar is different from all other cough syrups. It contains antiseptic properties to destroy the germs, solvent properties to cut the phlegm and laxative properties to cleanse the system. Bee's laxative Honey and Tar is a pleasant permanent cure for all coughs colds and lung and bronchial affections. Sold at Swan's drug store.

Something Needed.

"We are about to put a new piano on the market that we are sure will fill a long-felt want," said the manufacturer.

"What will you call it?"
"We shall call it the Cozy Flat Piano."

"Why?"
"Because it's about twice as high as an ordinary piano, but only about half its thickness; just right for a cozy flat."

His Only Knowledge.
"Where is the board of health?" inquired the stranger, who had been wandering aimlessly about the city hall.

"I can tell you where it isn't," replied the dyspeptic-looking man.

"Eh?"
"It isn't at Mrs. Starvem's. I know that much, because that's where I board."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Do, Re, Mi, Fa.

"You don't mean to say he has paid you in advance for the full course of singing lessons?" said the first vocal instructor.

"Yes," replied the other, gleefully, "because of a lucky misunderstanding. I said to him: 'You doubtless know our first lesson begins with "do".' He immediately apologized and produced the dough."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not in the Same Line.

"This is our latest novelty," said the manufacturer proudly. "Good work, isn't it?"

"Not bad," replied the visitor, "but you can't hold a candle to the goods we make."

"Oh, are you in the line, too?"
"No; we make gunpowder."—Youth.

Another Outrage.

Quite the Thing.

Editor—I'm surprised that Nurich didn't want any notice in our society column about his going to Europe.

Dangerous Gift.

Mrs. Crawford—Our son Sam writes like a copyplate. Ain't you glad to hear it?

Mr. Crawford—No, by hen! If he writes too good he's liable to never get any higher than those chaps that write visitin' cards on the sidewalk.

Guest—Sam, I suppose you like the men who always remember the waiter?

Sam—No, sah! Ah laks dem dat don't remembah de waiter. Den dey's liable to tip de same one two or three times en not know nuffin' 'bout it.

Proprietor—Oh! I do that myself.

In Demand.

"What's that line of people in front of your house?"

"Oh, they're neighbors who heard our cook was going to leave, and they're waiting for a chance to engage her."

Not a Litterateur.

"Is he a litterateur?"
"Oh, dear, no. Why, he's able to sell the stuff he writes."

Overdid the Thing.
"He wouldn't lie, even about the fish he caught. He just let the photograph speak for itself."
"Yes. He stuck a small branch of a small tree up in the sand, hung the fish to it, and then photographed it at short range. But he overdid the thing."
"How was that?"
"Why the branch looked like a big oak in the picture, and the fish was more than half as big as the tree. Somehow, people suspected him of lying, even if he didn't say a word."

Honor Satisfied Once More.

"Yes, it was the latest thing in French duels. Alphonse and Henri quarreled. Alphonse sent Henri his photograph and Henri seized his rapier and ran it through. Then Henri sent his photograph to Alphonse and Alphonse ran it through."

"What then?"
"Then they embraced and dined together."

Hard Thoughts.

Teacher—I whipped you for your own good; I really did. Now, tell me what you think about it?
Bobby—If I told you what I think you'd give me another licking.

A Trifling Difference.

"Im a little in doubt," said the doctor. "Your trouble is either one of two things."

"What are they?" asked the patient.

"Appendicitis or the stomach ache. However, we can settle that."

"By cutting you open, of course."

The One Man.

Poor Mrs. Woodby.

"So you're little Willie Woodby?" said the new minister after Sunday school. "I called to see your mother yesterday, but, unfortunately, she was not at home."

"Oh, yes, she was," replied the boy. "But I guess she took you for the installment man. You look somethin' like him."

A Foolish Move.

"You seem nervous and restless this morning," said Merchant.

"Yes," replied his partner. "I asked Borroughs to drop in to-day and pay me what he owes me."

"Ah! And you're afraid he won't come?"
"I'm afraid he will come and borrow more."

Hopeless.

Lenders—See! here! How about that $10 you owe me? You promised to mail it to me last Friday.

Spenders—Well, I'll tell you. I started to raise it but then I remembered that even if I did scrape it together I didn't have a stamp. So I couldn't send it.

When They Flowed.

Thomson—Did you ever run away when you were a boy?
Mobbs—Once.

"And I suppose the tears flowed freely when you returned."

"Yes. I made the mistake of returning when father was at home."—Stray Stories.

About the Limit.

La Montt—Stalewood is coming to tell one of his jokes. Let us run.

La Moyné—Are his jokes really so bad?

La Montt—Bad? Why, they are jokes you wouldn't listen to if he was going to buy the next round of drinks.

Jumped the Bill.

"At what hotel did you put up when you were in that town?" asked a casual acquaintance.

"None," replied the deadbeat.

"Didn't stop at a hotel, eh?"
"Oh, yes; I stopped at one, but I didn't put up."

Wealth.

"Is there much poverty here?" asked the stranger.

"I should say not," replied the Arkansas farmer. "Why, we took stock census last month, an' there was as much as half a sheaf for every man in the county."

Strange Chapel for Welsh Miners.
One of the most remarkable places of worship in the world is the miners' chapel in Myndd Menigdd colliery, Swansea, Wales, where for more than fifty years the workers have each morning assembled for worship. This sanctuary is situated close to the bottom of the shaft. The only light is that obtained from a solitary Davy safety lamp hung over the pulpit from the ceiling, and the oldest miner in the colliery is generally chosen to officiate.—Boston Transcript.

HAD FUN WITH MILLAIS.

Friend Tried to Convince Him He Was Not a Great Hunter.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt has a great reputation for his humor. Years ago he received an enthusiastic letter from his intimate friend Millais, the artist, who boasted of having killed a great stag. Sir William replied: "I received your wireless letter, from which I gather that you are under the impression that you have killed a stag. Poor fellow. I pity your delusion. I hope the time has now come when I can break to you the painful truth. Your wife, who (as I have always told you) alone makes it possible for you to exist, observing how the disappointment of your repeated failures was telling on your health and on your intellect, arranged with the keepers for placing in a proper position a wooden stag. You were conducted unsuspectingly to the spot and fired at the dummy! In the excitement of the moment you were carried off by the gillie, so that you did not discern the cheat."

Herbert Spencer and George Elliot.

The great philosopher and the greatest of all woman novelists were fast friends from their first meeting. She said in one of her letters: "But for him my life would be desolate enough;" and if Spencer had been a marrying man he would probably have made her his wife.

He always maintained, however, that men in delicate health, like himself, should not marry, despite Huxley's urgent and repeated advice that he should take the "wife cure." He said at another time that he might have married but had never met his ideal. It was he, however, who made her acquainted with George Henry Lewes, whose influence on her life and work was of the first importance.

John Stuart Mill was an intimate friend of both Spencer and George Elliot. "Mill thinks the object of living is to learn to work," said Spencer, "but I think the object of learning and working is to live." — Chicago Record-Herald.

The most beautiful money in the world, either paper or metal, is that in circulation in Washington, says the New York Herald. The bills come from the treasury every day crisp and clean, beautiful specimens of the engraver's art. The metallic currency is bright and shining from the mint. Almost all the currency paid over the counter in the cash room of the United States treasury is new. Bills that come there soiled in the least are retired and new ones issued in their stead.

In the Riggs National Bank is a commodious room in the front portion of the building, especially for the use of women customers. There is a special window also for their use in transacting business with the bank, and all checks, drafts and certificates presented for payment are always paid in the new money, either gold, silver, paper or nickel, no piece ever having before been put in circulation from the treasury, except in handling it over to the bank.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

431-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1903.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Willhelmina Swasey
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

INVESTIGATE

BEFORE YOU BUY YOUR SUPPLY OF PAINT

In these days of sharp competition it is well to see to it that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of House Paints on the market nowadays, advertised as "Pure" (but little better than "dope") that a man ought to know positively what he is buying. We suggest to those about to paint to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of Monarch Mixed Paint and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors and paint out a few feet. Carefully measure the paint so that you use no more of one than the other. Thus, with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity, which spreads the smoothest and looks the best. If you do not decide in favor of the Monarch Paint we will refund the money you paid for the can of Monarch used in the experiment.

MONARCH PAINT

is guaranteed absolutely pure and sold subject to chemical analysis.

MONARCH PAINT

in point of covering capacity and durability is unsurpassed by any painting material made.

MONARCH PAINT

being made of pure materials covers 25 per cent more surface, wears longer, and is more economical than adulterated paint.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Several months went by. The cooper went to see his wife at various times in the day, and never mentioned his daughter's name—never saw her, nor made the slightest allusion to her. Mme. Grandet's health grew worse and worse; she had not once left her room since that terrible January morning. But nothing shook the old cooper's determination; he was hard, cold and unyielding as a block of granite. He came and went, his manner of life was in no wise altered; but he did not stammer now, and he talked less; perhaps, too, in matters of business, people found him harder than before, but errors crept into his bookkeeping.

Something had certainly happened in the Grandet family, both Cruchot and Grassinette were agreed on that head; and "What can be the matter with the Grandets?" became a stock question which people asked each other at every social gathering in Saumur.

A whole town's secret leaked out, and the whole town knew that ever since New Year's Day Mlle. Grandet had been locked up in her room by her father's orders, and that there she lived on bread and water in solitary confinement and without a fire. Nanon, it was reported, cooked dainties for her and brought food secretly to her room at night. It was said that only when Grandet was out of the house could the young girl nurse her mother, or indeed see her at all.

Grandet had just entered upon his sixteenth year. Avarice had gained a stronger hold upon him during the past two years of his life; indeed, all lasting passions grow with man's growth; and it had come to pass with him, as with all men whose lives are ruled by one master idea, that he clung with all the force of his imagination to the symbol which represented that idea for him. Gold—to have gold, that he might see and touch it, had become with him a perfect monomania. His disposition to tyrannize had also grown with his love of money, and it seemed to him to be monstrous that he should be called upon to give up the least portion of his property on the death of his wife. Was he to render an account of her fortune, and to have an inventory drawn up of everything he possessed—and put it all up to auction?

"That would be stark ruin," he said aloud to himself, as he stood among his vines. He made up his mind and came back at dinner time fully determined on his course. He would humor Eugénie, and coax and cajole her so that he might die royally, keeping the control of his millions in his hands until his latest sigh. It happened that he let himself in with his master key; he crept noiselessly as a wolf up the stairs to his wife's room, which he entered just as Eugénie was setting the dressing case, in all its golden glory, upon her mother's bed. The two women had stolen a pleasure in Grandet's absence; they were looking at the portraits and tracing out Charles' features in his mother's likeness.

"It is just his forehead and his mouth!" Eugénie was saying, as the vine grower opened the door.

Mme. Grandet saw how her husband's eyes darted upon the gold. "Oh! heaven have pity upon us!" she cried.

The vine grower seized upon the dressing case as a tiger might spring upon a sleeping child.

"What may this be?" he said, carrying off the treasure to the window.

"Gold! solid gold!" he cried, "and plenty of it, too; there is a couple of pounds' weight here. Ah! so this was what Charles gave you in exchange for your pretty gold pieces! Why did you not tell me? It was a good stroke of business, little girl. You are your father's own daughter, I see. This belongs to Charles, doesn't it?" the good man went on.

"Yes, father; it is not mine. That case is a sacred trust."

"Put, tut, tut! he has gone off with your money; you ought to make good the loss of your little treasure."

"Oh, father!"

The old man had taken out his pocket knife with a view to wrenching away a plate of the precious metal, and for the moment had been obliged to lay the case on a chair beside him. Eugénie sprang forward to secure her treasure; but the cooper put out his arm to prevent this, and thrust her back so roughly that she fell on to the bed.

"Sir!" cried the mother, rising and sitting upright. Grandet had drawn out his knife, and was about to insert the blade beneath the plate.

"Father!" cried Eugénie, going down on her knees and dragging herself nearer to him, "for your own soul's salvation, father, if you have any regard for my life, do not touch it! The case is not yours, and it is not mine. It belongs to an unhappy kinsman, who gave it into my keeping, and I ought to give it back to him untouched. Do not pull it to pieces. You will bring dishonor upon me. Father, do you hear me?"

"For pity's sake, sir!" entreated the mother.

The shrill cry rang through the house and brought the frightened Nanon upstairs. Eugénie caught up a knife that lay within her reach.

"Well!" said Grandet, calmly, with a cold smile on his lips.

"Father, if you cut away a single scrap of gold, I shall stab myself with this knife. It is your doing that my mother is dying, and now my death will also be laid at your door. It shall be wound for wound."

Grandet held his knife suspended above the case, looked at his daughter, and hesitated.

"Would you really do it, Eugénie?" he asked.

"She would do as she says," cried Nanon. "Do be sensible, sir, for once in your life."

The cooper wavered for a moment, looking first at the gold and then at his daughter. Mme. Grandet fainted.

"There, sir, you see the mistress is dying," cried Nanon.

"There! there! child, do not let us fall out about a box. Just take it back!" cried the cooper hastily throwing the case on to the bed. "And, Nanon, go for M. Bergerin. I come to mother," he said, and the blessed his wife's hand; "we have made it up, haven't we, little girl? No more dry bread; you shall eat whatever you like. . . . Ah! she is opening her eyes. Well, now, little mother, don't take on so! Look! I am going to kiss Eugénie! She loves her cousin, does she? She shall marry him if she likes; she shall keep her little case for him. But you must live for a long while yet, my poor wife."

"Oh, how can you treat your wife and daughter in this way?" mourned Mme. Grandet.

"I will never do so again, never again!" cried the cooper. "You shall see, my poor wife."

He went to his strong box room and returned with a handful of louis d'or, which he scattered on the coverlet.

"There, Eugénie! there, wife! those are for you," he said, fingering the gold coins as they lay. "Come, cheer up, and get well, you shall want for nothing, neither you nor Eugénie. There are a hundred louis for her. You will not give them away, will you, eh, Eugénie?"

Mme. Grandet and her daughter gazed at each other in amazement.

"Take back the money, father; we want nothing, nothing but your love."

"Oh, well, just as you like," he said, as he pocketed the louis, "let us live together like good friends. Let us all go down to the dining room and have dinner and play loto every evening, and be as merry as the maids. Eh! my wife?"

"Alas! how I wish that I could, if you would like it," said the dying woman, "but I am not strong enough to get up."

"Poor mother!" said the cooper, "you do not know how much I love you; and, you, too, child!"

He drew his daughter to him and embraced her with fervor.

"Oh! how pleasant it is to kiss one's daughter, after a squabble, my little girl! There, mother! do you see? We are quite at one again now. Just go and look that away," he said to Eugénie, as he pointed to the case. "There! there! don't be frightened; I will never say another word to you about it."

M. Bergerin, who was regarded as the cleverest doctor in Saumur, came by after the interview that the patient was very seriously ill; that with a light diet, perfect tranquillity, and the most constant care, her life might possibly be prolonged until the end of the autumn.

"Will it be an expensive illness?" asked the worthy householder. "After all, M. Bergerin, you are a man of honor. I can depend upon you, can I not? Come and see my wife whenever, and as often as you think it necessary. Preserve her life. My good wife, I am very fond of her; you see, though I may not show it, it is all shut up inside me, and I am one that takes things terribly to heart; I am in trouble, too. It all began with my brother's death; I am spending, oh!—heaps of money in Paris for him—the very eyes out of my head, in fact, and it seems as if there were no end to it. If you can save my wife, save her, even if it takes a hundred or two hundred francs."

In spite of Grandet's fervent wishes that his wife might be restored to health, for this question of the inheritance was like a foreboding of death for him; in spite of his readiness to fulfill the least wishes of the astonished mother and daughter in every possible way; in spite of Eugénie's tenderest and most devoted care, it was evident that Mme. Grandet's life was rapidly drawing to a close. Day by day she grew weaker. She seemed to have no more vitality than the autumn leaves; and as the sunlight shined through the leaves turns them to gold, so she seemed to be transformed by the light of heaven. Her love for her daughter, her meek virtues, her angelic patience, had never shown more brightly than in the month of October, 1822, when she passed away. On the morrow after her mother's death, it seemed to Eugénie that she had yet one more reason for clinging fondly to the old house where she had been born, and where she had found life so hard of late—it became for her the place where her mother had died. She could not see the old chair set on little blocks of wood, the place by the window where her mother used to sit, without shedding tears. Her father showed her such tenderness, and took such care of her, that she began to think that she had never understood his nature; he used to come to her room and take her down to breakfast on his arm, and sit looking at her for whole hours with something almost like kindness in his eyes, with the same brooding look that he gave his gold. Indeed, the old cooper almost trembled before his daughter, and was altogether so unlike himself that Nanon and the Cruchots wondered at these signs of weakness, and set it down to his advanced age; they began to fear that the old man's mind was giving way. But when the day came on which the family began to wear their mourning, M. Cruchot, who alone was in his client's confidence, was invited to dinner, and these mysterious waters explained. Grandet waited till the table had been cleared and the doors carefully shut.

Then he began, "My dear child, you are mother's heiress, and there are some little matters of business that we must settle between us. Is not that so, eh, Cruchot?"

"Is it really pressing; must it be settled to-day, father?"

"Yes, yes, little girl. I could not endure this suspense any longer, and I am sure that you would not make things hard for me. Everything must be decided to-night."

"What do you want me to do?"

"Why, little girl, it is not for me to tell you. You tell her, Cruchot."

"Mademoiselle, your father wants neither to divide nor to sell his property, nor to pay a heavy succession duty upon the ready money. So if these complications are to be avoided, there must be no inventory made out, and all the property must remain undivided for the present."

"Cruchot, are you quite sure of what you are saying that you talk in this way before a child?"

"Let me say what I have to say, Grandet."

"Yes, yes, my friend. Neither you nor my daughter would plunder me. You would not plunder me, would you, little girl?"

"But what am I to do, M. Cruchot?" asked Eugénie, losing patience.

"Well," said the notary, "you must sign this deed, by which you renounce your claims to your mother's property; the property would be secured to you, but your father would have the use of it for his life, and there would be no need to make a division now."

"I understand nothing of all this that you are saying," Eugénie answered; "give me the deed and show me where I am to sign my name."

Grandet looked from the document to his daughter, and again from his daughter to the document. His agitation was so great that he actually wiped several drops of perspiration from his forehead.

"I would much rather you simply waived all claim to your poor dear mother's property, little girl," he broke in, "instead of signing that deed. It will cost a lot to register it. I would rather you renounced your claims and trusted to me for the future. I would allow you a good round sum, say a hundred francs every month."

"Do as you like, father."

"Mademoiselle," said the notary, "it is my duty to point out to you that you are robbing yourself without guarantee."

"What does that matter to me?"

CHAPTER XIX.

"Do be quiet, Cruchot. So it is settled, quite settled," cried Grandet, taking his daughter's hand and striking his own into it. "You will not go back from your word, Eugénie? You are a good girl."

In his joy he embraced his daughter, almost suffocating her as he did so.

By noon next day the declaration was drawn up, and Eugénie herself signed away all her rights to her heritage. Yet a year slipped by, and the cooper had not received a sou of the monthly income which was to have been hers; when Eugénie spoke to him about it, half laughingly, he hurried up to his room, and when he came down again he handed her a third of the jewelry, which he had purchased of his nephew.

"There! child," he said, with a certain sarcastic ring in his voice; "will you take these for your twelve hundred francs?"

"Oh! father, really? Will you really give them to me?"

"You should have as much next year again," said he, flinging it into her lap; "and so, before very long, you will have all his trinkets," he added, rubbing his hands. He had made a very good bargain, thanks to his daughter's sentiment, and was in high good humor.

Five years went by in this way, and no event disturbed their monotonous existence. Eugénie and her father lived a life of methodical routine with the same regularity of movement that characterized the old clock. Every one knew that there had been a profound sorrow in Mlle. Grandet's life; every circle in Saumur had its suspicions as to the state of the heiress' heart, but she never let fall a word that could enlighten any one.

In the year 1827 her father began to feel the infirmities of age, and was obliged to take her still further into his confidence; she learned the full extent of his landed possessions. Grandet had reached the age of 82, and toward the end of the year had a paralytic seizure, from which he never rallied. Death came up at last, and the vine grower's strong frame wrestled with the Destroyer.

So Eugénie Grandet was alone in the world, and her house was left to her desolate. There was no one but Nanon with whom she could talk over her troubles; she could look into no other eyes and find a response in them; big Nanon was the only human being who loved her for herself. For Eugénie, Nanon was a providence; she was no longer a servant, she was a humble friend.

M. Cruchot informed Eugénie that she had three hundred thousand livres a year, derived from landed property, besides six millions in the 3 per cent, and in ready money two millions in gold, and a hundred thousand francs in silver, without counting any arrears that were due. Altogether her property amounted to about seventeen million francs.

"Where can my cousin be?" she said to herself.

On the day when M. Cruchot laid these facts before his new client, together with the information that the estate was now clear. Eugénie and Nanon sat on either side of the hearth in the parlor, now so empty and so full of memories. Everything recalled past days, from her mother's chair set on its wooden blocks to the glass tumbler out of which her cousin once drank.

Our Peppermint Stick.

The old-style stick candy has red stripes running around it in spiral form. The body of the stick is white. It is slightly flavored with peppermint. It is very sweet and wholesome. Good enough for a king! So cheap that the poorest may have it. Six sticks for 5 cents. Enough to last a family of six two days. Break a stick in two in the middle, eat half of it after dinner, or after supper if preferred. That is enough candy for one day. It is good for children. Keep it in the house. Away up in the pantry where the children can't help themselves. After dinner is over take it down, break a stick in two and pass it around. The children will like it immensely. They will like it all the better for not being able to get too much of it. Never let them have all they want of it. A half stick is enough, although a whole stick might be allowed occasionally. All the fancy stuff put up in boxes that cost a dollar or more cannot equal the old-fashioned stick candy. Six sticks of it contain more solid comfort and more nutrition than a wagon load of caramels and painted bonbons. It is the candy of our forefathers. Our grandmothers used to eat it. Accept no other. Be sure that you get the proper trademark—red stripes running spirally around the stick. Beware of substitutes.—Medical Talk.

FARMS AND FARMERS

Coop for Growing Chickens.

Where chickens are raised in considerable numbers, it is necessary to provide protection for them while they are on the range, and a house such as is illustrated and described here may be produced at small cost. Make a number of them and scatter them over the range. Obtain a number of small dry goods boxes, making the roof of any material one has on the farm or buying the cheap hemlock lumber and covering the cracks with laths or tarred paper. In the gable end cut a large hole for ventilation and arrange the opening in the front so that some means will be had for closing it so that the storm may be shut off.

If one has but a few coops a sliding window may be used to close the front; if many coops are made the opening may be closed by a sliding door made of thin material. During the summer, if this solid wood door was used it would be advisable to make the ventilation opening larger and cover it with some coarse mesh wire netting. Unless one has had experience, it is hard to realize the great value of these coops and especially during the early fall before the chicks go to winter quarters, a period when hard storms are likely to occur.—Indianapolis News.

Cultivating Drilled Corn.

It is generally conceded that more corn can be grown on an acre in drills than in hills, but in weedy land the great trouble is to keep drilled corn clean and free from weeds. The great mistake in cultivating drilled corn usually is made at the first working, when shovels of medium size are used and small furrows left close to the rows. We find it no harder to keep drilled corn free from weeds than it is to keep hill corn clean, by using the smoothing harrow across the rows just as soon as the corn is up. In four or five days a second harrowing may be given and then the cultivators be set to work.

Avoid leaving any furrow close to the rows, and also be sure not to throw a ridge of earth up to the plants. Keep the land just as level as possible the first two or three workings and then as the plants begin to shade the ground they will do much to smother out weeds. The later cultivation of any corn is best given by a one-horse five shovel cultivator or instead of the two-horse riding implement, as with the former one can go very shallow and keep at any desired distance from the growing corn. We believe there are too many high-priced riding cultivators and not enough small one-horse implements used. The latter, diligently used, insure clean crops.

Loss from Bitter Rot.

The losses from bitter rot of apples are seldom appreciated, but the men that have investigated them declare them to be simply enormous for the entire country. Professor Blair of the University of Illinois, said last fall that the losses from bitter rot in four counties of Illinois had totaled for the past season $1,500,000. This was in the four counties of Marion, Clay, Lincoln and Wayne. Bitter rot is a fungous disease and can be controlled to some extent by spraying. It is time that apple growers awoke fully to the enormous tax they are every year paying to the fungous diseases that ravage orchards. Could farmers eliminate even this one scourge of bitter rot we would add millions of dollars to the value of the apple crop.

Water for the Swine.

Pure water does more than quench the thirst of the hog. It enters largely into the composition of flesh; it assists in digestion by acting as a solvent for food elements; it is a vehicle for carrying off the poisonous wastes of the system, which, if not thus removed, are often reabsorbed by the system, either creating diseases or conditions favorable to disease ravages. When the drinking water happens to be unwholesome in itself, the possible double mischief is easily understood.

Treatment for Scratches.

The best treatment for scratches is to put one ounce each of sulphate of zinc, sugar-of-lead and powdered alum into a quart bottle, fill with pure soft water and shake well. Saturate the sore places well once a day for a week, then apply sweet oil to the scab once a day to soften the scab and make it peel off; then wash with warm water and castile soap. If the horse is used while being cured, always clean and dry the legs, rubbing

COOL WEATHER RETARDS CROPS

Rain Also Causes Damage, but Corn Has Made Good Progress.

The weather bureau weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:
Unseasonably cool weather has continued in the Missouri valley and over the western part of the upper lake region, but elsewhere the temperature has been very favorable. Heavy rains have prevented cultivation and greatly interfered with harvesting in the lower Missouri, central Mississippi and Ohio valleys and in parts of the middle Atlantic States and lake region, and much grain in shock has been damaged in Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. Drought prevails in Texas.

Corn has made vigorous growth, but continuous rains have prevented cultivation, and much of the crop is weedy. In the more northerly districts corn is generally backward, but has advanced decidedly during the last week. In the middle Atlantic States the crop has made excellent progress and is in very promising condition.

Winter wheat has sustained great damage from continuous heavy rains in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri, where the unharvested grain was seriously damaged by rust and lodging and that in shock by molding and sprouting. Harvesting has continued under favorable weather in the districts east of the Mississippi. Harvesting has continued under favorable conditions on the Pacific coast.

While spring wheat has suffered slightly from rust over the southern portions of the spring wheat region and is thin and weedy on lowlands in northern Minnesota, the crop as a whole has advanced satisfactorily.

Oats have suffered from excessive moisture in the lower Missouri valley, but elsewhere this crop has made satisfactory progress. Cotton has grown rapidly.

DERBY WINNER IS SHOT.

Highball, at Brighton Beach, Fractures Leg in Two Places.
Highball, champion 2-year-old last season and winner of the 1904 American

HIGHBALL AND HIS JOCKEY.

Derby, was shot at Brighton Beach Tuesday afternoon. The colt fractured his near fore leg in two places during the running of the Sengate stakes, and although the veterinarians made an attempt to patch up the shattered limb and save the valuable colt, they failed, and the horse was shot.

The accident happened during the last part of the struggle, just as the horses were making the turn into the home stretch. It was the opinion of horsemen that Highball's accident was due to stepping on a hard portion of the track. They said that the Brighton Beach management in its endeavors to have fast records had made the track too hard. Highball, suffering from pain of the bad right leg, was evidently favoring it and throwing his weight on the firm left leg when he met the hard spot. The strain and weight proved too much for the brittle bone and it snapped.

The destroyed thoroughbred was valued at $35,000. His owner refused an offer of $30,000 for him last fall, and had him insured for $25,000, as he was heavily engaged in rich stakes this year.

CLOUDBURST KILLS 200.

San Juan del Monte, a Suburb of Manila, Is Completely Destroyed.

Two hundred lives were lost and $2,000,000 worth of property destroyed by a cloudburst at San Juan del Monte, a suburb of Manila. The cloudburst followed an unprecedented rain which continued for twenty-four hours, during which time seventeen inches of water fell.

San Juan was almost entirely destroyed by the floods which swept down upon it from the hills, coming so swiftly that hundreds of the residents were unable to escape. The surrounding country is under water and the natives are fleeing to the hills for safety.

San Juan del Monte is a small town west of Manila and lies between the hills and the seashore. The town is in the path of the water that runs down from the hills during the rainy season, but this rainfall was unprecedented.

While the natives were preparing to flee to the hills in safety, and carry as much of their property as possible, the cloudburst occurred in the hills, causing a flood that swept down upon the little town with such violence and swiftness that two hundred persons were drowned.

The cash statement of the United States Treasury shows: Reserve fund (gold coin), $150,000,000; trust fund, held against notes and certificates issued, $981,772,769; general fund, $126,008,051; in national banks, $121,372,124; awaiting reimbursement, $124,011,121; total, $2,447,550,780; liabilities, $84,701,212; cash balance, $102,858,574.

CURRENT COMMENT

What is the use of flying machines when a man on a bicycle can ride thirty miles in thirty-three minutes, fifty-two and three-fifths seconds? This record was made in Cambridge, Mass., last month. The man who hopes to ride on the wings of the wind could not often beat this record, as the wind seldom blows more than thirty miles an hour.

A year ago a car load of hot ashes emptied on the "dump" of a Pennsylvania coal mine set it on fire. The dump fired the "slope," and the mine has been burning ever since. The flames now threaten to consume several million dollars' worth of coal. The operators might make the experiment of raising the price of their coal—a practice that of recent years has put out a good many fires.

For eighty-eight years the American Bible Society has published only the King James Version of the Scriptures, but it is soon to publish the Revised Version. A few weeks ago it amended its constitution so that it might issue the old version, or the English revision, or that revision with the amendments of the American committee. It is nineteen years since the complete revision first appeared, and it seems to have vindicated itself in the minds of those who desire to get as nearly as possible to the words of the original.

Since the famous voyage of the Oregon from San Francisco to Florida there has been great interest in long-distance runs by American battleships. Before making this excellent record the Kearsarge had steamed five thousand miles without cleaning or repairs. Now comes a new champion in the Kentucky, which made the run from Madeira to

It has been estimated that the population of Indian Territory is growing at the rate of 500 people a day. This applies to a period covering the last six months. Taking the last census figures, 592,000, and comparing it with the present estimated population of 592,000, a growth of 135 persons per day would be shown. But this is not a fair test, as the increase in population within the past year has been greater than in the three preceding years combined. If the territory continues to increase in population during the next two years as it has in the past year, when statehood comes in 1906, Indian Territory will come in with a population of 867,000. Oklahoma will probably equal this and make the total population of the new State 1,734,000. This will be the largest population ever claimed by any State at the time of admission.

Taking the census figures of 1900 for a basis, the population of Indian Territory at that time was nine times as large as Nevada, six times that of Alaska, four times that of Wyoming, twice that of Hawaii, and double that of Idaho, Delaware and New Mexico, 148,000 more than Montana, 115,000 more than Utah, 72,000 more than North Dakota. The population of the territory has increased at the lowest estimate 200,000 since that time, while it is not likely that in any of the other territories mentioned it has increased 25 per cent and in the States mentioned not more than 10 per cent since the census, so that the comparative figures, if they could be had at this time, would be still more in favor of Indian Territory.—Record, Fort Worth, Texas.

For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."—Miss ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee Minneapolis Club.

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.

The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I doctored a great deal but received no benefit. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found great relief. Menstruation is now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for sometime."

How is it possible for us to make it plainer that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low,—all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and sickly, discouraged with life and without hope for the future, when proof is so unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering—all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills peculiar to women.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Getting Something for Nothing.
"It is my experience," said the chief clerk of a New York confectionery store, "that even women who have all the money they want to spend will walk two blocks out of their way to a store where they can get something for nothing. Sometimes it is only a sample package of chocolate that costs a rival in business less than half a cent a package. Sometimes it is licorice pellets done up in little silk bags. Again it is a free glass of soda water with every pound of candy. In hot weather it is a fan. No matter what it is, the women will rush to that store."
"The triumph of getting something for nothing has an attractiveness for most women that they cannot resist.
I wanted the boss to go in for something of the kind; but he gave me a look that nearly froze me stiff. He is willing to let the dollars drift by and maintain the dignity of the house."

Thin Hair

Last of Comedian's Hair.
Some one heard that De Wolf Hopper sported a hair ring. From being a dainty gold circlet with a tiny lock, it grew to a wide band with large twisted strands. There was considerable excitement about it.

Finally a friend said to him:
"Say, haven't lost any of your immediate family?" pointing to a ring on the actor's hand.

"Not that I know of. Why?"
"Well, it's whispered on the Rialto that you wear hair in your ring, and I thought you might carry a curl around with you for sentiment."

"Oh, no," Hopper looked sadly at his friend's head, covered with baseball hair. "That hair in that ring came from the front side of my own head years and years ago, and I keep it so that I may have some to stand on end during first nights, as of old."
—New York Times.

A Vegetarian Under Fire.
After a thin, pale man and a big,
stolid man had been engaged in a warm discussion for a time on a suburban trolley car the other evening the smaller and more peppery of the two made it apparent that he wanted all those present for an audience.

"I am a vegetarian," he shouted. "I never saw one of your beef eaters yet that could think clearly or reason intelligently."

Then some of the indignant passengers who did not agree with him and resented his sweeping assertions came in with their volubility.

"Hair's just the color of a carrot," chuckled the fat man.

"Nose is a little reddish," said the young man in evening dress.

"And something of a 'turnup,'" tittered the pretty girl hanging to the same strap.

"But he's a 'beet,'" snorted the butcher.

"Regular 'punkin' head,'" growled the Englishman who had eaten many an ox.

The vanquished vegetarian raised a parrot-shaped finger to the conductor. The parrot in the corner murmured, "Lettuces have peas," and the tittering girl ended the fusillade by requesting the little man not to "squash" her as he wedged his way to the rear platform.—New York Press.

The Epistles.
In a Sunday school a few Sundays ago the teacher asked a class of little girls: "Can any little girl here tell me what the Epistles are?"
"I think I know," said one child.
"Well, Dorothy?"
"The Epistles were the Lady Apostles."

WISCONSIN LANDS.

If you are in search of wooded lands, well located,
we would call your attention to 10,000 acres we are agents for in Pierce and Clark Counties, Wis. The timber is nearly all hard wood, not cut and slashed as in pine timber, but logging trees, for which there is always a good demand. There is a saw-mill in the vicinity that will buy all the logs brought to it. The soil is deep, no stone or ledge croppings. Land is level, yet plenty of good drainage. We have dense woods or partially cleared, some covered only with brush. Average crops: hay, 5 tons to acre; barley, 40 to 50 bushel to the acre; oats, 60 bushel to the acre.
Good markets. We also have some good improved farms.

Price of wild land $12.50 to $20 per acre. Farm is one fare, plus $2. If land is purchased, price of ticket is credited you. We make this as a positive statement.
If you want northern Wisconsin lands to personally make a farm of, go and look at this proposition, and we know you will purchase.

We also have the sale of Lands in Washburn and Barron Counties, Wis. This land is well wooded, is located 60 miles northeast of St. Paul, and 80 miles from Duluth. The market for produce is excellent.
Prices 10 to 40 dollars.

NORTH DAKOTA LANDS.

For those who do not desire wooded lands we have made arrangements whereby we have secured the soliciting agency for 500,000 acres of Prairie land in the richest part of North Dakota, along the east bank of the Missouri river in the counties of McLean, Burleigh, Kidder, Stutsman, Logan, Emmeson and Mc-Intosh. Good black loam soil, clay sub-soil, good climate, best of crops, schools, churches, plenty of coal, ($1 per ton at the mines), 3 railroads. Last year's crop of wheat was 25 bushels per acre, oats 75, flax 15 to 20.

ARKANSAS LANDS.

You may say I am far enough north now. All right, we have lands in Central and Northern Arkansas, the future fruit orchard of the world. Land where everything grows, cotton and corn, peaches, pears and apples, a land where cattle and sheep can graze 10 months in the year. The tide of immigration is no longer westward but is drifting south and if you want to make big money buy southern lands, for in ten years you will double your money. Our lands are located near Lonoke, Ark., about 100 miles from Little Rock, the capital, on the main line of the Rock Island system.

For more complete description of land call or write us. That's what we are here for. We don't expect to sell every one, but we will do you good.

A Hot Temper.

One of the common complaints of parent against child is, "He has such a temper!" This is not meant to be a compliment and is not commonly received as such. But isn't it?

A child without a temper may be very sweet and satisfactory to its parents, but it can hardly be a child of any great force of character. Whoever saw or heard of a person with positive qualities, capable of being a strong influence, that did not have a standing army of 48,000 in time of peace. Roumania, which has a million fewer people than the state of New York, has a standing army of 130,000.

But to be ill natured—that's a vastly different matter. It proves that one has either a very small mind or a very poor digestion; or both—usually both.—Saturday Evening Post.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burgo, of Martinsville. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Trade With Spain Improves.
Spain now purchases from the United States $15,500,000 worth of goods a year; an increase of 50 per cent since 1898. American ice cream freezers and rubber overshoes are seen in all Spanish villages.

Britain Minds More Coal.
The increased production of coal in Great Britain last year led to the employment of 17,276 more persons than in 1902, the total number engaged in 1903 being 842,066 and in 1902, 824, 791.

To Abolish Standing Armies.

The smaller countries of Europe are finding that standing armies are too expensive to maintain in time of peace. A captain in the Bulgarian army, writing in the Independent, says that the thinking men of Europe are in favor of abolishing standing armies and substituting the American plan of state militia.

In Bulgaria, for instance, there are not so many people as there are in Greater New York, yet it has a standing army of 48,000 in time of
peace. Roumania, which has a million fewer people than the state of New York, has a standing army of 130,000.

If the American standing army were as large as the Turkish, in proportion to our population, we would have 700,000 soldiers to support. The cost of these standing armies is beg-garing the people in half a dozen European countries.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by J. H. Swann, druggist.

Winning to Promise.

"Would you object to having the word 'obey' kept in the marriage service?" asked the colonel.

"Oh, not at all," replied the beautiful grass widow, falling into his arms before he could retreat; "is there any particular minister that you wish to perform the ceremony, darling?"

England's Heavy Man Is Dead.

The heaviest man in England was buried at Dover the other day. His body weighed 630 pounds. It lay in a coffin that was seven feet long, three feet wide and two feet three inches deep. Twelve men lifted it, and it was rolled out through a window into a hearse backed up on the sidewalk.

The Little Wife.
"The little wife is the one who ruins the man's life. She is the one who is never long."
"But—when the man is long?"
"Lead the sweetest way."
"Neither the valley nor the heights."
"Relieve him on his journey."
"But—when the man is long?"
"Relieve him on his journey."
"But—when the man is long?"
"Relieve him on his journey."
"But—when the man is long?"
"Relieve him on his journey."

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Charles Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr.
King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00.
